

ORDINATION CEREMONY

Norfolk, Virginia Vicinity, USA

SEERSGATE SAYS:

I was invited to attend a local church ceremony. And I truly pondered that plan. There was a stale way where the worship didn't go past the ceiling. Please know that my heart does care about all in that church way. It was a boring way. I had to focus hard to keep connected to what was given. I stood. I sat. I prayed. I listened, yet I could not get a will in being in a deep communion with Yahweh.

Here is where a person may say that it would be your own job to get your way excited. Should I fake it? Should I say the "amens" to get people moving in thinking they are in a pleasing way there, in their presentation? Should I put on the "shouting" music so I could work my flesh up and get "in the spirit," as would be said? Should I join in the moving of a ritual and do it every weekend? What does it truly profit any who would go out and drink the same old wine yet hope to have major outreaches and fire-filled revivals?

So, people are in churches just to look good, yet they still really struggle to want that way every week.

Tell me, what would it take to shift that church so they have a deep power-drinking plan? You have to see that they hope to reach many, yet the power to bring about a plan of revival is lacking. Standing, clapping, and praying will take on a new plan where a worship plan is demonstrated.

There can be church ways, but there must be power from God I AM backing up the full work. There would be a purpose that would take over—not with zeal or tradition, but with Kingdom wisdom and power, God will have a way to funnel His will in a structure deep within.

The Kingdom awaits a true shift in the people where they walk in surrender to what the Great Way will bring you. Power is not just what the media presents. It will have to be viewed as God's hand pushing His full will forward and affecting all who are connected. Power is: showing up when that church, ministry, person, or business is ready to handle that authority. Power will lead it—the ingredients needed to complete the work.

Kingdom purpose and power walk together and will take away striving. Kingdom planning will not be just about building, but there will also be a true calling.

I stayed to the end, never tasting power. I heard Yahweh speak, saying that I see the way they drink in His will. That's paraphrased, for I cannot give certain details to hurt or cause pain in underlying ways just to say it. If God were to move and give power to all His church gatherings without a protocol in place, I fear that people would try to build their own Tower of Babel to try to reach God in ways contrary to what the Great Father would want.

I have witnessed a great thing: ministering servants walking into the ministry. Will someone tell them that the will to take should always have the Great Planner leading? The Great Way King Jesus must lead. Come and drink a deep way. Power cannot lead if the work is not ready for expansion. And without backing from Yahweh, striving leads within those few workers. God must lead in each detail. Church growth is pointless if God is not giving purpose.

I saw it this day—boredom—just coming to sit in a ritual detail. Who wants more of God? Say so. How? Get out of your ritual and start seeking God's Kingdom first. Where? Wherever you are.

Your relationship with God is not on Sunday. It should be into eternity, where you are learning to talk to Him, saying what you truly mean. Talk to Him. Learn from Him. Spend time with Him.

God has a purpose for each person. Does it mean that your purpose will only be in attendance at that local building? Or could it mean that the unseen Kingdom of Yahweh is everywhere, and with the Kingdom being everywhere, you would move in being a Kingdom citizen everywhere you go? Yes. Go and take up a plan to come and gather. Yes, come and learn the Word so you can grow up in the faith.

But do not ever be fooled into thinking that your full joy is in that building; for now, you would be missing the point.

Power, presence, and glory—they will not have a plan to be built. Purpose—your purpose will stem from God's hand. And God will have helpers who will walk with you on this journey. All should be in connection with God. Don't have a way to think there will be purpose based on where you go weekend after weekend without power from God.

Power, presence, and glory—get them, but first, let God have you.

Go to your church, but stay to meet Him. Yahweh is well pleased with what I just spoke on this detail. May you truly drink Him. May the people look to the Great Way for full provision in being a filled way. Church visits will continue. I will bring you God's way in sharing in each detail.

Take care and stay close to the Great Way King Jesus.
